Electro-Opoe.
Office of York Enterprise, Yorkville, S.C., Aug. 14, '91.
Atlantic Electro-Opoe: Gentlemen—For the past five years my wife has been a sufferer from dyspepsia. She completely lost the disease make a week of her former self that life was almost destroyed. Her nervous system was almost completely destroyed, and the slightest noise would throw her into a nervous spasm, which would last for hours. Medical skill failed to bring any relief.
Through the recommendation of an eminent divine we were induced to try the Electro-Opoe.
After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. Her nervous system has been restored to its normal condition; she is rapidly gaining in flesh and, upon the whole, is making a rapid recovery, which speaks volumes for the wonderful curative powers of the Electro-Opoe, as her case was considered hopeless. If any are suffering from the same, let them try the Electro-Opoe, and its wonderful powers will quickly dispel all doubt. Yours truly, W. M. PROFF.

"The Man-Eater of the Mississippi."

Early writers and travelers in the Mississippi valley tell blood-curdling stories of a terrible creature, part beast, part bird, part serpent and part man, which we are told formerly inhabited the bluffs and swamps of the great Father of Waters between the mouths of the Missouri and the Des Moines rivers. Most writers of later days are of the opinion that such a creature never existed, in fact, they put the paternity of the story on certain Mulattoes who are known to have been fond of "giving to airy nothing a habitation and a name." For more than a century after the advent of the white man in the Mississippi valley stories of the "man-eater" were told and generally believed, but soon these were all to be denied and refuted. Then the very existence of such a creature was doubted, but there was Father Marquette's description of the creature to back those who still believed that such a monster truly had at one time existed in what is now the Central United States. Then another class of wonder monsters sprang up, who claimed to have seen a picture painted on the bluff near where Alton, Ill., now stands. As years went on even this story was denied. In 1888, when the question was up for discussion, J. B. Miles, of Miles Station, Ill., wrote an article for the Alton Telegraph, of which the following are extracts: "I first saw the animal, if animal it could be called, in 1833, and since that date I have seen it from time to time hundreds of times before it was destroyed by the elements or by the hand of man during the civil war." "The enclosed is an exact picture of it." Following the last sentence quoted, Mr. Miles gives a picture of the creature, which shows it with a body like a lion, except that the legs are very short and the body long and like that of a panther. Wings of a curious pattern, with eight feathers at the points, fasten to the shoulders and extend to beyond the root of the tail, which is long and slender, seeming to be made in imitation of that of a tiger.

The neck is very heavy, well arched and full, surmounted by what I would take to be a good picture of the head of a buck deer of 7 or 8 years of age, the horns being broad, each with four points. After giving his picture, Mr. Miles goes on to say: "Many times have I examined the picture closely, and I must say that it is a mistake for anyone to say that it was painted on the rocks. The bird or animal was cut, chiseled or picked into the solid rock, but how, when or by whom I know not. Its body was that of a lion, its head and horns those of a deer and its wings those of a bird. Draw your own conclusions as to what it was intended to represent, but I believe that the above, a fac-simile of the 'Picture on the Rocks,' was the handiwork and handwork of man, chiseled or cut into that rock to commemorate some person or some thing." Everybody believes that the sphinx was built to represent a personage. Why not believe that this mythical bird-beast was made to represent the noble deeds of some great person of pre-historic times in America?

With the article sent the Telegraph Mr.
Miles also inclosed a picture of the creature described by Marquette, which is identical with that described above, with the exception that it has a man's head, its feet, four in number, much resembling birds' claws.

A Girl's Distress.

A pretty young girl sat in Mayor Mosby's office in Cincinnati yesterday morning along with the usual crowd of applicants for free transportation.
Her eyes were red with weeping, and she told a pitiful tale of man's perfidy and desertion. Her name she gave as Rosa Hibson, and her home she said was in Baltimore. She is an orphan, and she met and loved a young man, whose name she refused to give. This progressed until, she says, she was chloroformed and taken to Cincinnati, Ky. While still under the influence of the drug the man accomplished her ruin. After living with her in Cincinnati for a month he deserted her in the strange town. She could find no work there, and made her way to Cincinnati, arriving a few days ago. She found employment, but Thursday her employer, noticing her condition, took her to the Home of the Friendless, where she spent the night. Yesterday she applied for a pass back to Baltimore, where she has some hope of finding her quondam lover. The Mayor thought there was so little possibility of her being able to do this that he is trying to induce her to remain at the Home of the Friendless.

To the voters of Alexandria city and county: In response to the request of many friends in

In thus placing myself before the voters of our same cause may deprive me of all opportunities of a personal canvass; I therefore announce my candi-
